What you can expect

Are you ready to transform yourself to inspire others for a better world?

In an increasingly uncertain world, it's time for a new approach to leadership. The first Future Female Leaders Academy, hosted by IMD, will introduce the three pillars of "apocalyptic leadership" – inspired by insights from Albert Einstein – that will help you see the world through fresh eyes, both individually and collectively.

Join IMD Professor of Leadership, Communications, and Organizational Change Susan Goldsworthy for this transformative workshop where you will learn to:

- Unlock your leadership potential by embracing the tempered radical within
- Learn how to "play to thrive" with curiosity, courage, compassion and creativity in the face of complex and uncertain challenges
- Question the norm and challenge the status quo
- Heighten awareness by recognizing unconscious scripts
- Address systemic roots for a deeper understanding of challenges

The Global Female Leaders interactive workshop employs short lectures, group discussions, and self-reflection exercises where you will actively learn how to motivate each other towards sustainable change. The session will create opportunities to exchange insights and network with inspiring up-and-coming female leaders.

No preparation is needed. Participants are encouraged to come with an open mind and open heart.
